

ARKANSAS SPECIAL EDUCATION MEDIATION PROJECT

WHAT IS ARKANSAS SPECIAL EDUCATION MEDIATION PROJECT?

The Arkansas Special Education Mediation Project (ASEMP) is different from other mediation programs in that it is not court-centered. The method for resolving special education disputes is an administrative hearing process. The ASEMP gives parents and schools an alternative.

Trained professional mediators assist parties in finding effective solutions to the problems affecting educational services for children with disabilities.

Mediation is voluntary and confidential.

It offers parents and educators the chance to work with each other and address a child's special education needs.
